The Importance of Play

“Scientists have recently determined that it takes approximately 400 repetitions to create a new synapse in the brain – unless it is done with play, in which case, it takes between 10 and 20 repetitions.”

Writing – Y6

He ran as if his life depended on it, maybe it did. Mrs Woods was a ~~care~~ cared person overall but she couldn't give up the opportunity to save her school. She ran. Hey behind you, she screamed as she ran over to the police officer. I'm sorry but you're going to have to explain to me exactly what the situation is, the officer replied. That boy is a danger to society! she said with the only voice she had left, but there was no time to save the school. The boy was on the run. He wasn't riding at the normal speed.

The police officer

"Local high school almost in ruins, the news reported. Many thoughts ran around inside his head. Who? How? An explosion! A horrified look appeared on his face, could he do this? There was no time to think, it was a local school and he could become a hero. Looking out of the window, he saw a teacher who he knew, needed to ~~alm~~ calm down. Hey, you, turn around and catch that boy! she shouted whilst rapidly breathing

"Please calm down, you're going to have to explain to me exactly what the situation is here," the officer replied, trying to calm her down.

"You've seen what has happened on the news, that boy caused it all, she said, using the last of her voice. In the distance was a boy speedily riding away on his bike, faster than the normal speed. Although he followed in his ~~egg~~ car, he didn't seem to be creeping any closer. Were his eyes deceiving him?

Avoiding arrest, the culprit was heading home, hoping to become safe. Letting himself get arrested would provoke in chaos. The culprit ran inside a cluttered house as if nobody was supervising him. A silhouette of a young boy appeared on the wall, creeping around cautiously.

BANG! BANG! BANG! Police, open up. No reply. Was there no escape? The door was locked and grabbing keys would create an alarming noise. 1. 2. 3. OPEN. Police cautiously crept inside the house hoping to capture the dangerous boy. No sign of the culprit. Toys hovered in the air, what kind of nonsense was this. They rushed towards the back door. No sign of the culprit. A cold breeze then emerged into the house, the door was wide open. He had escaped.

The boy

Nevertheless, the boy noticed the moving shadows creeping through the door. Clearly, the boy was in danger. Panic ran through his mind. Was there a different way other than to surrender himself. Shadows were escaping to the door. He was only a boy. He felt emotions undescrripbly stressed, nervous and scared for what could happen next. Who
